Opmantek signs significant agreement in Central America and grows its telecommunications user base

Opmantek Ltd (ASSOB: OMK).

Opmantek is pleased to announce that it has executed a significant commercial agreement with a major Telecommunications organisation in Central America. The Telco has licensed all of Opmantek's software and in addition has licensed a new product that Opmantek will develop for them. Under the agreement the Telco will use Opmantek's software to launch new services in their market and as these services have not yet been publicised Opmantek is unable to publicly release the name of the organisation – shareholders and prospective investors have been notified. The Telco has also contracted Opmantek for implementation and support services. The bulk of the licensing payments will be made to Opmantek in December (2012).

Opmantek's Managing Director Mr Maher says: "We have a strategy to expand our telecommunications clients and to continue to grow momentum in Latin America. The signing of this agreement represents significant success for the company and enters us into another country in Latin America. This deal was again done with the client approaching us and without a face-to-face meeting. It is a fantastic achievement as a stand alone agreement and in addition has opened doors for strategic expansion into another 12 countries."

Opmantek has commenced implementation which is expected to be completed in February 2013.

Opmantek operates in the field of Network Management Software under a disruptive business model that leverages low cost community development to deliver their software to a global client base.

Opmantek is in the final round of their capital raise, with approximately $150k remaining.
